RASKOB HOPES FOR DRY LAW REPEAL

LIGHTS BLIND DRIVER YOUTH IS BADLY HURT

Milford Wolcott, Aged 21, of Black Lick, In Home and Hospital.

Milford Wolcott, aged 21, of Black Lick, O, is a patient at the Home and Hospital following an accident just west of the W. Main-st bridge at 9.35 p m. Thursday when he was thrown from a motorcycle driven by Walter Nafzger, of Gault-st, Columbus

Wolcott is suffering from a deep cut over his right eye, a bad bruise on his forehead between his eyes, a cut in his scalp, a cut just right of his right eye and numerous cuts and bruises on his body. Nafzger who was driving the Harley-Davidson motorcycle, escaped without a scratch although he, too, was thrown

BLINDED BY LIGHTS

The accident occurred when upon rounding the curve just west of the bridge, Nafzger was blinded by the lights of an oncoming automobile. He, not being able to see the curve in the highway, drove over the concrete wall at the left side of the road and down into the ditch The motorcycle, which was badly damaged, was wedged against the concrete wall and both its occupants thrown clear. Although neither of the youths knew what they hit, or how they hit, it is thought Wolcott was tossed against a bed of stones and Nafzger was thrown to the deep grass as he does not even have a scratch on him.

As soon as it was learned there was an accident, the M. S. Rinehart ambulance was rushed to the scene and Wolcott was taken to the Home and Hospital where Dr. Lloyd Jonnes was summoned. Dr. Jonnes hurried to the hospital and worked over Wolcott for about an hour The injured youth was in great pain but showed undeniable grit all during the time Dr. Jonnes was treating his numerous injuries, he kept joking and making a great effort to laugh.

ON WAY TO WORK

The youths were on their way to Chillicothe where they are employed by the Mead Paper and Pulp Co. Wolcott is married.

The automobile whose lights blinded the driver of the motorcycle didn't even stop to see what might have happened to the youths. They were found just a few minutes after the accident occurred by passing drivers. Nafzger says he was traveling no faster than 25 or 30 miles an hour when he started to round the curve because he didn't know the road and was taking no chances.

Wolcott was to be returned to his home either late Friday or Saturday.

TWO MEN FACE TRIPLE CHARGE

Deputies Arrest Circleville and Adelphi Man 17 Miles East of Town.

Roy Thompson of Circleville, and Albert Lungster of Adelphi, are being held in the county jail pending a hearing on a charge of intoxication, disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace filed against them Friday. The two men were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Doggy Ward and Miller Fissell at 1 a. m., Friday on the Adelphia-pk, 17 miles east of Circleville.

The deputies received a call from a farmer on the Adelphi-pk telling them to come out and quiet the men. When the officers arrived the two men were fighting and carrying on that it required a time to quiet them.

Fissell found a .38 calibre revolver which Lungster is said to have tried to hide in the weeds and when they returned to the jail and the car was searched a .32 calibre rifle was found.

Whether to file a charge of carrying concealed weapons or not has not been decided.

Hospital Commission Announces Schedule Of Available Rooms

With the announcement that another two-bed room has been taken at the Berger hospital a statement as to what rooms are yet not spoken for is now made.

The rooms available to furnish and the cost of each;

Five nurses bedrooms, cost of each, $130 complete;
One living room, $150 complete;
Reception room, $150 complete;
Office, $160;
Library and consultation room, $275;
Two sun rooms, each $175;
Kitchen, $575,
Delivery room, $350;
Accident-operating room, $150;
Major operating room, $600;
One two-bed room, $300,
One two-bed room, $250.

A number of public-spirited persons have already spoken for rooms with the idea in mind that the hospital will be an asset to the community as a whole. That is the one idea of a hospital; to aid the community in which it is located.

For many years, the necessity of a hospital in Pickaway-co has been imperative. Many persons who have suddenly been taken seriously ill, or who has been the victims of accidents could have been saved much suffering had a hospital been nearer than Columbus, Chillicothe or Lancaster The hospital project is something that demands the support of practically every person in the community which it will serve.

For those persons who are skeptical about this new institution, which is rapidly nearing completion, we ask just one thing; visit this hospital building today or tomorrow or anytime that it is at all possible and see for yourself just what kind of an institution this is going to be.

Many persons who have not been wholly in favor of the project have changed their minds upon seeing the interior of the building. There is always someone who will be glad to take you through.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dunlop, Jr., Williamsport, Find House On Fire.

An overheated gas grate in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dunlap, Jr., of Williamsport, was the cause of a fire which did $150 damage Thursday evening.

The fire was discovered when Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap returned to their home. Mr. Dunlap went into the house to find it filled with smoke. He immediately notified neighbors and with the aid of Pyrene fire extinguishers the blaze was soon under control. It had, however, gained considerable headway behind the mantel piece. This was torn away. The plaster kept the fire from getting into the laths and walls doing much more damage.

HUTCHINS ASKS RADICAL TURN IN EDUCATION

Educator Tells Teachers That Credits, Grades Are "Automatic Yardsticks."

By JOHN J. VINCENT
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

COLUMBUS, O., April 4.—The youth of tomorrow will face radical changes in the system of American education, both in which schools and in colleges, if ardent pleas which were sounded at the tenth annual Ohio educational conference here today result in definite movements.

Do away with credits, grades and attendance records in universities, R. M. Hutchins, aged 31, the youngest college president in the United States, pleaded with 2,800 school teachers who attended the first general session of the conclave. In their places, adjust the university to the individual, said the Chicago University president.

He termed credits, grades and attendance records as "arbitrary, automatic yardsticks." Hutchins' dream, he stated, is to have the youths finish college in the time required by them to successfully pass fixed examinations and not fix any actual time limit, such as four or six years courses. Abolish the age limit, said the professor, who then sounded the warning that "no one should be permitted to go on in college unless he manifests an interest in and an ability to deal with some major division of knowledge."

Dr. R. Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, who followed Hutchins to the speaker's platform, pled for a better atmosphere in American homes.

"One million American homes need to be sent to the wet wash, so to speak. Like Topsy, they have 'just grown.' Beauty in the home is necessary to happiness and healthful citizenship."

He stressed the fact that such ideas should be embodied in education and declared:

"There should be a garden in every home, or, where that is impossible, there should be flower boxes and plants."

While in Columbus, the secretary of the interior reviewed the

Columbus Youth New Pickaway Golf Club "Pro," Was Caddy

Frank Casey, of Columbus, a former assistant golf professional under the veteran Charlie Lorms at Columbus Country club, has signed a contract to become professional at the Pickaway Country club, according to an announcement. Casey will come here on Saturday, April 12, to begin his new duties.

The announcement of Casey being hired as "pro" for the local course comes as more or less of a surprise for J. F. Jervis signed a contract in that capacity last winter. Mr. and Mrs. Jervis arrived at the club on a Saturday and after looking over the situation, which for some reason or other was not suitable to Mrs. Jervis, they left the club the following Monday.

There was considerable controversy about hiring an instructor after Mr. Jervis cancelled his contract but after much discussion the directors of the club decided to employ a young "pro" and turned to Charlie Lorms, always a friend of the club, for advice.

Lorms advised the directors to hire Casey, and now, this lad is on the Pickaway club payroll.

Casey is a former student at Aquinas high school, Columbus, and started his golf career as a caddy at the age of nine. He worked in a shop of Frank Waugh when the latter was associated with the Columbus Country Club and later served under Lorms at the East end links

In 1927 Casey was stationed at the Elks' Country club and the following year rejoined Frank Waugh at the municipal club.

Last season, he was a traveling representative for the Pavey and Parker Golf Co., of Detroit, but finished out the season with Herb Vance at the Dublin Road club.

The campaign has reached the stage where the "laggards" will begin to drop behind at a fast clip those who are vitally interested and who are really out to win the automobiles and other prizes, will forge steadily to the front and will not let up a single day until the finish.

Several of the candidates are to be complimented for the way they have worker during the last week on the vote offer which expired Thursday. Many who have been only partially interested came to the front in good shape, and a glimpse at the standing of candidates will show that big changes have taken place in this list. Many who had been expecting friends to help them, discovered that what these friends wanted was for they themselves, to become interested and come to them for their assistance and then they would gladly give them their subscriptions. All the candidates need to do is to "get busy" among their friends and explain the plan of reducing the extra votes each week in order to get their assistance. If you fall back, you will, as a rule, have a

Washington C. H. Newspaper Lauds South Bloomfield Minister.

Rev. William Alexander of the South Bloomfield M. E. church who is fast becoming one of Ohio's best known speakers, received wide comment in Washington C. H. as a result of a talk he gave the Rotary club there Tuesday at noon.

A Washington C. H. newspaper says the following of the popular man:

Rev. Alexander's theme was "Fool's Stuff," apropos of April first, or "all fool's day," and while his talk to the club was chiefly a series of jokes of a real mirth-provoking nature, it was interspersed with a rich vein of philosophy that gave weight to his talk.

Rev. Alexander has been throughout the world, and spent sometime in remote corners of the earth.

His pronounced English accent added much to his presentation of his address.

DEM. CHAIRMAN TALKS BEFORE SENATE GROUP

Vigorously Applauded When He Appears Before Lobby Commission.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—"I think there is a great deal of hope for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment," John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, told the senate lobby committee today.

He took the stand to testify about his connections with the association against the prohibition amendment as the first witness in the committee's inquiry into lobby activities of wet and dry organizations. Before he was sworn by Chairman Caraway he was introduced to Senator Robinson (R) of Indiana, who had him called.

"I have been contributing $30,000 a year since 1928," he said.

"Have you much hope for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment?"

"Yes. We are having very good results for modification."

The room was packed and Raskob was vigorously applauded when he appeared.

Caraway asked him to name the officers of the association. He did, but said he did not know their salaries.

"I judge from this list that the organization is bi-partisan," said Caraway.

"As a matter of fact there are more Republican members than Democrats," said Raskob amid laughter.

"Do you know what the annual revenues are?" asked Senator Walsh (D) of Montana.

"No."

"Do you know any large contributor?"

"Mr. Charles Sabin and Mr. Pierre Du Pont."

"Have you a corps of investigators?"

"No, not that I know of. I am not active save to attend directors meetings four or five times a year."

"Do you know if your association was responsible for charts hung on the wall of the senate chamber the other day during a speech against prohibition?"

"Not that I know of but they do prepare such data and make it available for any one who wants to use it. We are making an honest effort to educate the people. The association maintains no lobby in Washington."

Raskob said he never had been directly or indirectly connected with brewing or distilling interests.

"Who directs the expenditure of funds?" Walsh asked.

"The executive committee" said Raskob.

"What effort have you made to have Democratic party members contribute to the association?"

"I have been very careful not to mix my connection with the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee with the association against prohibition amendment. I do not think it is my place to do so."

"Do you believe the Eighteenth Amendment should be repealed?" asked Senator Robinson.

"I do, or at least modified."

MEUSEL AND HEILMANN MAY INSPIRE OTHER RED HITTERS

By DAVID J. WALSH
International News Service
Sports Editor.

NEW YORK—They speak glibly of the power of suggestion when they are playing pathological tennis with Dr. Freud. But in many instances, this is just a sonorous phrase intended to convey the wholly commonplace thought that man is a rank imitator. In school yard patois, the phrase, "monkey see, monkey do," might answer the same purpose.

This, of course is a rather narrow interpretation but it is wide enough to cover the question of just what, if anything, the presence of Harry Heilmann and Bob Meusel will mean to the Cincinnati outfield this year. These men are hitters, natural, untrammeled. The Reds haven't known anything like them since Ed Roush was traded to the Giants almost four years ago and even Roush lacked the sheer power of either Heilmann or Meusel.

Call it the power of suggestion, force of example or what you will, but hitting such as Heilmann figures to give the Reds ought to be something of an inspiration to Critz, Ford, Dressen, Swanson, and kindred souls who can't hit the fence on the second hop.

Ruth, for example, undoubtedly inspired Gehrig. The latter had potentialities but they needed Ruth's example to bring them into the light of day. The great man simply went out there and hit off the premises with the most ponderous swing baseball has known, this clearly proving that the pitcher was not infallible. Ruth could hit him with a swing that started back in the third row balcony. Why, then, couldn't the next man do it with a swing that started no further away than the letters on his chest? That, Watson, is elementary.

It simply means that the pitcher is encouraged in proportion to the discouragement on the opposite bench when nobody can get a hit. If this condition is chronic, the team in question eventually becomes inured to the matter and suffers from the disease they call defeatism. A potentially good hitter can even settle into the same rut with the rest of them under these conditions. As for a potentially light hitter, he soon leaves for Council Bluffs and has to die in order to get his name in the papers.

Cobb doubtless exerted a beneficial influence on the dynasty of Detroit outfielders that have come up from nowhere to achieve undying renown in the last twenty years. Bobby Veach was one—a great hitter—Heilmann himself was another. Fothergill and Manush blossomed vividly after some of the others began to fade.

Anyhow, I notice that the class of Detroit outfielders is beginning to fall somewhat below the standard. Cobb has been away for four years. Of course, they have had the impetus of the old drive and the inspiration of Heilmann but even though Johnson and Stone were first-year successes, it seems possible that in the years to come Detroit outfields might sink to the level of mediocrity. This, in any case, was so in Cleveland for the few years directly following Speaker's departure.

I don't know what Meusel will do for the Reds. He is a comparatively young man but his last season with the Yankees saw him hitting .261 and it may be that his fall is permanent. But Heilmann always was a hitter and it strikes me that he always will be.

Four times leader of the American League with marks of .394, .403, .393, and .398, he has never been below .344 in the last eleven years and ought to hit National League pitching with equal, if not greater, abandon. If he does, it might be well to look for some hitting at Redland Field for the first time in some years.

Both machine and hand work enter into the manufacture of geographical globes. The map must be printed in gores. These gores are cut out by hand and pasted on the ball by hand. The globe ball is made as follows: The inside shell is formed in a steam press from peat board and glue. Over this is put a coat of plaster of paris, which after thorough drying is smoothed on a lathe until a perfect sphere is obtained.

The events in the meet at Columbus consist of: 60-yd free style, 40-yd back-stroke, 20-yd breast stroke, diving contests, swimming under water and a relay swim. The meet will start at 8 p. m. Friday.

Earth's Rotation

The naval observatory says that no energy at all is exerted to keep the earth rotating on its axis. All that is necessary for continued motion is that no force be acting to stop it, and that is the case, except that the tides have a retarding effect, which is so minute that it is only within the last 100 years that astronomers succeeded in detecting it.

Baseball Nine Edges Washington 9-8—Davis Gets Four Bingles.

The Darbyville baseball team pried the lid off the season Thursday evening when it defeated the Washington-twp boys, 9-8 at Darbyville.

With Washington leading 8-7 in the last half of the seventh frame, Davis cracked a three sacker. From there he scored on a muffed fround banll tying the count and putting Neff on second. Clinton drove a line over the infield scoring Neff with the winning marker.

"KONJOLA VERY MEDICINE THAT FIT MY CASE"

Had Suffered Ten Years—All Else Tried Failed Before New Medicine Came To Rescue.

MRS. ABE HOLMAN.

My experience with Konjola proved to me that this is, indeed, the master medicine," said Mrs. Abe Holman, 238 South Torrence street, Dayton, Ohio. My health was rapidly slipping away, and no matter what I did to prevent it, I failed to find the right medicine. Impurities in my system made me feel sluggish, tired and worn out. Every meal was followed by cramping pains, misery, and a feeling of heaviness in my stomach, and I had about abandoned hope of ever seeing another well day.

"There was but one way to find out about Konjola, the medicine I heard so much about, and I decided to try it. Well, Konjola is the very medicine that fit my case! In five weeks this wonderful medicine banished all my ills. Now I eat hearty meals without the slightest distress, and simply feel great. That's why I am so enthusiastic about Konjola."

Konjola forms no habit; it contains no alcohol, nor a single harmful drug. A couple of bottles usually brings amazing relief, but a treatment of from six to eight bottles are recommended for complete and lasting results.

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

TRAINING CAMP SHORTS

FORT WORTH, Tex. April 4—Babe Ruth and his barnstorming circus were here today for an exhibition after the Yankees were defeated in Wichita Falls yesterday by the Spudders, 9 to 6, despite a brilliant performance by the Bambino. He made two home runs, thrilling 10,000 fans.

MACON, Ga., April 4—That battling punch of the Brooklyn Robins was highly esteemed today by the Boston Braves, who fell before the Dodgers here yesterday 7 to 4. The Robins, indeed collected only nine hits as compared with ten for the Braves but the Brooklyn boys were thoughtful enough to garner their plows in the third inning, scoring four runs.

MEMPHIS, April 4—A long workout was on the program of the New York Giants today. They clash tomorrow and Sunday with the Memphis club.

Manager McGraw announced he would probably use Bill Walker in the Giants opening game at the Polo grounds.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., April 4—The loss of Rogers Hornsby was keenly felt in the Chicago Cubs camp today as the National league champions continued their exhibition series with the Angels.

Charley Root hurled the Cubs to a 5 to 4 victory over the Angels yesterday.

Hornsby, star slugger, was ordered to the bench indefinetly due to the recurrence of a growth on his heel.

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 4—A Chicago White Sox team capable of giving a real exhibition of real slugging was promised fans today after the Chicago team whipped Fort Worth, 10 to 4 yesterday in a slug fest.

The Comiskey team pounded out fourteen hits.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 4—The Cincinnati Reds' feat of winning six consecutive ball games today had been shattered by the Birmingham Barons, who themselves now boast of plastering three major league ball clubs in a row.

Keeping the Reds' seven bingles well scattered and aided by four errors, the Barons won an easy victory, 3 to 1.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 4. Weather permitting, the Cleveland Indians will go to Baton Rouge today for an exhibition game. The Tribe was rained out of their scheduled match in the capital city yesterday.

Led by Walter Simmons, kid brother of Connie Mack's Al Simmons, the Indian rookies trimmed the New Orleans Pelicans by a score of 6 to 4 on a rain-soaked diamond yesterday. Young Simmons smashed in four of the Cleveland runs.

The English sparrow is by nature and heredity a wild bird. It might be possible to tame one if one started with a very young bird.

TOLEDO CITY EMPLOYE DIES

Man Falls Into Incinerator, Body Soon Burns To Cinders By Heat.

TOLEDO, O., April 4—City employes are today discussing the horrible death which claimed Fred Knoll, 39, of Toledo, cremated alive yesterday when he slipped and fell into the city incinerator here.

A heat of between 1,500 and 1,600 degrees was under the hopper of the huge rubbish burning pit.

Fellow workmen heard Knoll scream as he slipped. They looked into the pit to see the man's body lying across the red-hot grates. The body was soon burned to cinders.

Miss Lena Householder went to Columbus Friday on a business visit.

Hair that sparkles!

No one can deny the importance of having the hair arranged in the style best suited to the individual type. Much of the effect is lost, however, unless the hair is kept soft, abundant, lustrous.

A million busy women and girls know the easiest way to keep the hair in perfect condition is with Danderine. The first application will show you how marvelously it removes excess oil from the hair; cleanses it; makes it sparkle with new life and lustre. It's so simple to use Danderine. All you do is put a little on your brush each time you arrange your hair! The consistent use of Danderine will dissolve the worst crust of dandruff; soothe, heal the scalp; stimulate the growth of long, silky, abundant hair.

Danderine isn't sticky or oily, doesn't show. It makes the hair easy to manage; holds it in place for hours. "Set" your waves with it and see how much longer they stay in.

The Trade Mark

OLD SILVERSMITHS, in order to help people tell pure silver from cheaper imitations, marked the real thing "sterling."

In a like manner, manufacturers, who stand back of their wares, identify them with trade-marks that are your guarantee of quality. By advertising these trade-marks, they focus on their products the searchlight of attention.

Only good goods, fairly priced, can flourish in this light of publicity. For no merchandise and no business can thrive under the weight of public condemnation.

That is why a manufacturer, or a merchant, places the whole reputation of his business at stake every time he advertises. His goods must be as advertised.

So, in looking through this paper, remember this: the man who spends his money to invite your consideration of his wares backs up his belief in his goods and leaves the final decision to you.

It pays you to read the advertisements. It pays you to buy advertised products.

Advertising is your protection.

BANDED QUAIL

The Game Commissioners of Pennsylvania are releasing 15,000 Bob-White Quail within the next few weeks. These birds are banded and the Pennsylvania officials will appreciate reports of any of the birds found in Ohio anytime this year. Communicate with the Game Commision at Harrisburg, Pa., or the Conservation Division, Columbus, if banded quail are identified.

EGGS TO THE RESCUE

An example of "specialty farming" comes from the little hill county of Meigs, where tractor sales are scarce, because they'd roll down the slops if farmers tried to use them. The home newspaper says:

The egg production in Meigs county at this season has been estimated as the greatest economic factor in the county at this time. Egg production at the peak of the season is enormous and the number of eggs shipped out of the county is estimated at 800 to 1,000 cases weekly. These eggs are now bringing 20c per dozen in the local market.

Meigs County, the men interested in chickens say, is particularly adapted to the raising of chickens, either meat or egg producing breeds. The hill land that is not capable of raising farm products will raise chickens as easily as the most fertile and most productive land in the state. Meigs county has more than its share of this hill land that is of little use agriculturally and more and more of the hill farmers are realizing the fact that they can make a better living by confining their efforts to the care of a flock of well bred fowls, orcharding, intensive truck growing and other specialized crops. Even furs of wild animals produce an annual income that helps the cash receipts in many farm homes in the county.

TO PLANT 150,000,000 FISH

While millions of fish that have reached maturity will be taken from Lake Erie and its bays during the fishing season that opened March 15th, other millions of baby fish will be "planted" so that there may be fish for future seasons.

About 72,000,000 eggs, or spawn, were received at the federal fish hatcheries at Put-in-Bay last fall, while something like 80,000,000 eggs will be hatched this spring and deposited in the lake here and there.

Something like 80 per cent of the 152,000,000 eggs will be hatched this spring and deposited in the lake her and there.

The depositing, or planting, as the fishermen say, will be later than usual because of unfavorable weather conditions last fall.

The fishing season was opened this year under more auspicious circumstances than last year or the year before.

Just how many men are going to find themselves on a pay-roll again as a result of the opening of the fishing season is a matter of conjecture. It may safely be said, however, that the number will run into thousands along just Ohio's shore line.

Commercial fishing is a big industry, so big an industry that few who have not studied it have any dea how big it is.

"I sure had my eyes opened" remarked Govenor Myers Y. Cooper one day last spring when, shortly after he had been inducted into office he went to Lake Erie's shore to look about and make a few inquiries.

READ THE LABELS

Chief O. J. Bailey of the Foods and Dairy Division sounds a note of advice to purchasers of food stuffs, particularly maple syrup at this time of the year. He joins Federal authorities in insisting that purchasers "read-the-labels".

The Federal food and drug act is strict in requiring that labels shall not mislead consumers as to the quantity, quality, or constituents of foods and drugs sold in containers. Consequently, a purchaser who reads the label carefully and intelligently can make sure that he or—as most frequently happens—she, in getting what she thinks she is paying for.

Suppose you ask for a bottle of Mayonnaise and your grocer offers a substitute labeled merely "Salad Dressing", Mayonnaise must contain not less than 50 per cent of edible vegetable oil and it must contain at least 79 per cent of a combination of this oil and egg yolk. Salad dressing may contain ingredients less expensive than oil and egg yolk. These ingredients are not injurous to health, but if you pay the price of Mayonnaise and get a less valuable product you are not getting your money's worth. A pinched-in bottle of flavoring extract may look larger than a plain bottle. The label must show the actual amount of liquid in each bottle. Assuming equal quality in the two bottles, the label will tell which quantity is the better to buy.

MORTGAGE CO. HAS DIVIDEND

Defunct Columbus Company Settles Claims Amounting To $335,800.

COLUMBUS, O., April 4—Receivers for the defunct Cities Mortgage Company, which, when it failed in 1927, caused a loss of approximately $2,000,000 to 2,000 stockholders in various parts of Ohio, Thursday declared a dividend of 8 per cent on outstanding preferred stock.

It was announced also that claims totaling $335,800 against the defunct organization had been settled. The claims were made by stockholders. The latter were allowed the dividends which they had drawn to date and 20 per cent of the value of their stock

Harvey C. Smith, former secretary of state, and one-time president of the defunct company, stood trial on embezzlement charges in connection with the company's failure. He was freed, however, when the jury which heard the case disagreed.

A. E. Querinjean, and Ray H. Patterson, directors of the defunct company, also stood trial and were convicted. Patterson's case is now pending before the Ohio Supreme court and Querinjean is serving a term in the Ohio State Penitentiary.

INSANE BURGLAR ESCAPES LIMA

LIMA, O., April 4.—Arden Kuhn, 27, alias Albert Ellis, Stark-co insane burglar, escaped from the Lima State Hospital for the Criminally Insane here early Thursday.

Kuhn was received from Stark-co Jan. 25, 1925, to serve an indefinite term for burglary. Details of the escape were not made known by prison officials.

STUDENT OPINIONS

What college students think nowadays seems to be of unusual importance. There are all sorts of questionnaires submitted to undergraduates, and their replies are duly analyzed and submitted to a waiting world. We have their mental reactions to prohibition, marriage, crime, religion and many other little problems that their elders have not yet completely solved.

The students' opinions on love and alcohol usually attract most attention. Here is something a little different. The boys in a scientific school asked what they think about God, declare as follows.

Most of the freshmen say they believe in a personal God. Likewise most of the seniors, after four years of rigid scientific study, give answers that amount to the same thing. Thirty-one out of 77 say they think of God in terms of love. Thirty-three conceive of God as an intelligent Creator. Only one regards God as mechanical.

Evidently science is not making so great a change in young men's religious and philosophic thinking as fundamentalists seem to fear.

What students will think ten years hence is more important than what they think now. It takes time for a college education to clarify. It has to be shaken up with life and then allowed to stand a while.

WARNING TO CREDITORS

The Young plan of war reparations is a compliment to the German nation, according to its principal author. Under it the creditor nations are to collect from Germany a sum approximately 50 per cent greater than their total debt to the United States. In other words, the Allies assume that Germany is industrious and skillful enough to carry all their war debts plus a substantial premium. Mr. Young thinks Germany can do it, too. Why? Not because she has what is regarded as basic raw materials, but because she has something more important. He says:

"She has, in large measure, a supply of that kind of raw material too little taken into account in the world's affairs, namely a capacity for scientific research, and the ability to apply it and organize it in production. It is not unlikely that this particular kind of raw material may be the reservoir out of which these vast sums will be produced and paid."

In that case, he adds, "The rest of the world must be careful to avoid the enervating effects resulting from the receipt of such payments. We should all remember that the discipline of hard work and of heavy responsibility is likely to do much for a people as well as for an individual. Let no man be sure, merely because he is a creditor of some one else's hard labor that therefore he is strong and will always remain so."

That is a serious warning, given by a man who knows a good deal about world affairs, particularly European and American economics. Will thoughtful Americans take his words to heart?

"MASTER of MONEY"
BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER LII.

"THEY say about thirty of them came through, Mrs. Brennaway," answered Abramovel apologetically. "Seven of them tried to surrender and they think four got away. Some of them are after the four now and expect to get them, as they were wounded."

Shirley turned from him and for a moment thought she would fall from the mare. Summoning all her strength of will, she thanked Abramovel and rode back to camp.

When she reached camp it was half-past nine. The whole battle, in which the most formidable band of comitadji had been wiped out, had lasted little more than an hour. She remembered the machine guns and knew what must lie round the bend out of sight. With this in mind, she collected a couple of foremen and told them to take all the laborers and clear the track.

At the shack Petros ran out to meet her, capering like a wild Macedonian "Zeto Kyria!" he cried wildly and then, suddenly returning to his role of respectful servant, explained apologetically in French. "Pardon, Madame, that is but to offer Madame my respectful congratulations."

"Is he better then?" demanded Shirley excitedly. She had forgotten the battle, Stephanos, Abramovel, everything but Alan.

"But no, madame—"

Shirley did not wait. She knew all the remorse of neglected duty as she rushed into the dug-out. She stared down at his closed eyes and thought that he was sleeping until he moaned.

"Alan, Alan. I had to leave you—I could do nothing!" she wailed. "Don't die, Alan—don't die. Life is so gorgeous."

* * *

Before ten o'clock they got Alan into his bed in the shack. As the heat rose he became restless, the moaning increased, and more than once she caught the word "water."

"The mouth may be moistened but he must not drink," warned Petros. "It is horrible but it is not serious, madame."

To Shirley it was the most serious thing in the world. She moistened his lips with a rag dipped in water, then thought of sponging his face and chest.

It was a laborious process, for she had to keep him covered with a mosquito net lest the flies tormented him. Petros stood by her till she sent him to rest.

Presently, roused by her bathing, he moaned to sleep. She waited motionless beside him for four hours, then crept to her own bed.

She was roused when he shouted her name with sudden sharpness.

"I'm here, Alan!" she called, and ran to his bedside. "What do you want?"

"Shirley!" he repeated. "Shirley. Get into your dugout!"

"All right, Alan—there's no need to get into a dugout, it's all over. You'll be glad to hear—"

She stopped as she saw that he could not hear her. He was sitting up in bed, his eyes glassy. She tried to force him back on the pillows and could not.

"That's better!" he rapped out. "They've got no guns and a rifle bullet can't possibly get her in the dugout. Now for those Serbians! Come on, you devils, get out those mules!"

She shuddered as she realized that he was now utterly beyond her control. While he raved she mechanically moistened his lips and sponged him, uncertain whether she were doing the right thing for him, guessing that at any moment he might seize her and strangle her, not knowing even that she was there.

"Slacken fire, Abramovel. One man in three now, and stand by to bolt when I give the word."

With uncanny precision, he was going over all the details of the battle as he had planned them—as she had carried them out.

"Shirley!" he shouted. "Shirley—you can come out of the dug-out. We've won. . . . Steady, you fool, for God's sake don't kiss her. She doesn't want to. It isn't love—it's only honor. She has paid her debt and she wants to pay it again and again out of pride. She'll give anything to be allowed to go on paying. She doesn't love anybody.

"Don't kiss her, don't touch her! . . . Shirley, my friend, we've beaten them. . . . Come into the shack and have some food—no, drink—I am thirsty. Water . . . water . . . water."

He sank down into unconsciousness and was still. She went on moistening his lips while her own thoughts stampeded from the words he had uttered. "It isn't love—it's only honor." He was confused, of course. In delirium some of the words were sensible and some were not. What did he mean by "it"? Nothing, of course. A delirious raving. Fiercely she told herself that the words meant nothing whatever.

He flung himself around in the bed.

"Oh, you want me to marry Shirley, too, do you, Cardew? Well, I'm not going to do it. Here's my resignation from the club. I've no moral obligation towards her whatever—she has brought the whole situation upon herself. . . . You're very clever, Mrs. Sibley, but I'm not going to argue with you.

"Who told you you could call yourself Mrs. Brennaway? And what do you think you're going to gain by all these little wifely touches? I wish you wouldn't dust this room. You're throwing the dust all over the place and making me thirsty. Give me some water. The dust is choking me. I'll give you all the money I have for some water. Oh, the dust—I can't breathe!"

He was rising up in the bed and she made the discovery that by crossing her hands over his forehead she could lower him back again. Then with one hand still pressing on the forehead with all the strength she could spare, with the other she continued bathing. For hour after hour it seemed, her left hand went mechanically to the water bowl.

"You're tempting me. . . . Damn you, Shirley, do you think I'm made of steel? . . . Day after day in the same house. Night after night. You're too clever to play the wanton. . . . You're breaking me down but I won't touch you, I won't, I won't.

"She isn't trying to marry you after all. Own up. Be fair to her. You've misjudged her all these months and behaved damned dishonorably towards her. She wanted to pay her debt. She knows Maurois fixed all that for her and that's why she's going to be a hostage. By God, if they hurt her I'll stop the work and get a thousand Serbians and we'll torture every one of those damned rats. If they've killed her I shall go mad!

"It was mad of her to come up here. She mustn't stay in the camp. . . Speak to her, you fool, and end all this trouble. . . No, if you really love her, keep your mouth shut. Get away and leave her to someone she can love, without any debt-paying. . . Don't look at her. Talk about work all the time. . . I want a drink."

Shirley started as she heard a footstep behind her. It was Petros.

"He may be given quinine as soon as the heat of the day has passed, madame," he said. "It is nearly four o'clock."

"Perhaps we could try it," said Shirley doubtfully. "It may stop the delirium."

She poured a dose and with difficulty got it between his lips. He dropped back, limp, and for a few agonized seconds she wondered whether she had killed him.

"I can't nurse him through this—I don't know enough," ran her thoughts. "And Petros doesn't really know anything. And the treatment may be different for Greeks."

"Petros, if I bring the car into the clearing, can you carry him into it? It's no good going on like this. I'm going to take him down to Salonika and look up a hospital."

"I can carry him madame," answered Petros. "But who will drive?"

"I will drive myself. You come with me in the car until we get out of camp—then hurry back here and tell Abramovel that we decided to go down to see about stores. I shall be back here before dawn."

Shirley arrived in Salonika shortly after nightfall, drove to the hospital and left Alan in the care of a highly competent staff.

In the course of that nightmare journey she had seen her whole life and his—had pieced together the fragments of his delirium and solved the mystery of their relationship during the last eight months.

Alan had assumed at the start that she wished to marry him without loving him. He had frequently changed his views later and believed that she wished to give herself to him out of pride. It was a pity he should think that. But it was unimportant when compared with the main discovery that he loved her.

Exultation at the knowledge had been checked by the horror of having to stand by him while, all unknowingly, he was pouring out his most secret thoughts about her.

Sties Warn of Sight Defects

One May Mean Just a Passing Infection, but Many Indicates Serious Trouble.

WHEN we are in perfect health our bodies are armed with mysterious powers of resistance to disease. Wrong living and eating improper foods tend to lower this resistance to such an extent that we become susceptible to disease germs.

DR. COPELAND

Any condition in which there is pus formation is thought to be due to an infection. Not an hour passes when we are not touching, handling or swallowing some of the thousands of germs that linger in the air, or are being blown about.

The body in perfect health fights off these germs. The skin and the mucous membrane act as protectors to the body, and they help in this armed resistance to disease. If there is a break in the skin or in the mucous membrane of nose or mouth, then the wily germ finds a lodging place.

In the case of sties, the bodily resistance may be lowered to a great extent by some illness—it may be influenza or other debilitating sickness—or by too little sleep, overwork, chronic constipation. Or there may be poisons in the system from bad teeth or other sources.

Then comes eyestrain from too much reading at night, poor lighting, or excessive use of the eyes. There may be irritation of the eyes by dust or smoke, rubbing the eyes, much weeping, or anything that irritates and inflames these delicate organs.

There may be only one sty, if it is due to a passing or accidental infection from some mild germ. But there may be a crop of them, and then we are dealing with a miserable condition.

When this trouble appears it is an indication there is something fundametally wrong with the system. You should see a doctor and find the underlying cause.

Bad habits of living and eating must be corrected. You should follow the advice of your doctor in building up your health and resistance to disease.

Have your eyes tested for eyestrain. If you have any defect of this sort it should be corrected with eyeglasses. Temporary relief for the inflammation of the eyes may be had by using a boric acid solution.

Sties are a danger signal and it is a warning that should be heeded. Sometimes they may be accompanied by boils. The condition of the system that will cause one may result in the other. See that your health improves. Be out in the fresh air and sunshine and take good sensible food.

Style Has Lasted

In the days when caps were worn instead of coats men frequently carried swords, hung at the left side, under the cape. The cape was held closed from left to right so that the right hand would be free to reach for the sword when necessary. When coats were substituted and swords were not necessary, the left side was still lapped over the right because men had become accustomed to it.

Said the "Sage of Chelsea"

As a "collective wisdom" of nations the talking of parliament, I discern too well, can never more serve. Wisdom dwells not with stump oratory; to the stump orator Wisdom has waved her sad and peremptory farewell. A parliament, speaking through reporters to Bunkum and the 27,000,000, mostly fools, has properly given up that function.—Thomas Carlyle.

Whiteman Band to Feature Latest Screen Successes

Bing Crosby

SONGS from the latest talking screen successes will be played and sung during the coming Old Gold Hour, Tuesday night, April 8, when Paul Whiteman directs his famous jazz orchestra from the civic auditorium at Seattle. The program will be relayed from that northwest city direct to New York, whence the Columbia System will transmit it over its nationwide network.

Outstanding among the features of this hour will be Bing Crosby's rendering of hits from two musical comedies now on Broadway. One is the waltz song, "It Happened in Monterey" from Whiteman's picture, "The King of Jazz." The other is the novelty number, "Alice in Wonderland," from Harry Richman's picture, "Puttin' on the Ritz."

With Crosby on the program will be the popular crooner, Mildred Bailey, who will sing "Blue Turning Gray Over You" and "I Still Remember." Jack Fulton, tenor, will sing the new ballad, "Romance," and Whiteman's 32-piece band will include in its own repertoire such hits as "Why?" from "Sons o' Guns," and "Hay Straw," from "Song of the West."

This program goes on the air Tuesday evening at 9 eastern standard time.

JOY WALKS

By Leslie L. Pontius

I long had wanted to explore the country back of those hills whose profiles adorn the Great Seal of Ohio. Recently my wants were gratified and I had a wonderful time. Floyd Bartley acted as guide and he is a real woodsman. No plant escapes his gaze and he can call them by their first name, so intimate is he with them.

After being used to the Hocking hills one misses the rock masses, the cliffs, gorges, and water falls. Here the valleys are wider and more fertile. The hills are no higher but the slopes are more gentle and graceful and the view one gets from the top of the highest amply pays for the tiresome climb. We were on the hunt for plants and were astonished to find so many in bloom at this time of the year. There were hepaticas with their delicate orchid colored flowers, almost a pastel of delicate quality. Here were the little white lilies better known as the dog's tooth violet or adder's tongue, with their prettily mottled leaves that have a snaky look. What is that! Bloodroot! The bloodroot, like its cousin the poppy, comes and goes in a day. The biossom is lily white with a golden center. Well! Well! Here is my old childhood friend, the spring beauty, with its white and pinkish flowers delicately veined with deeper pink.

At the edge of the woods we came upon a flock of juncos, (perhaps they are better known by the name of snow bird), winter migrants from the north, basking in the warm sunshine and frolicking like a party of merry children. When the first warm days of March bring up the robins and bluebirds, the juncos get the love fever. They muster in the treetops on the warm hillsides and indulge in a lively party. Several sing at once a tinkling trill, not very pretentious, but tender and winsome. We gave up our flower hunting for a time and joined the party.

Our course took us into a warm sheltered nook that had been cleared some years ago and now lay neglected. Imagine our surprise when we came face to face with the pure white bloom of the sweet violet. This violet is not a native of this country, it was brought here by the first settlers from Europe and later carried inland by the early pioneers. The early pioneer who settled here had to build a terrace in order to have a level space on which to build his cabin. I imagine I can see the early pioneer lady as she carefully planted the seed of this violet among the rocks that formed the terrace eagerly watching for the first tiny sprout and then carefully caring for it until it bore blossoms. I can see her kneel and inhale the fragrance of the first blossoms, kiss them each one tenderly and form with them a pact of friendship that they have kept inviolate all these many years. On the top of the highest point at the extreme end of this range of hills, there is a corydallis growing that has been causing us some concern. We expected to find it in full bloom, but it was only in bud and we needed flowers to prove our side of the story. There was some dissappointment.

We slid down the slope to the little road that winds around the base of the hill, and slowly walked back to the waiting machine. It is the unexpected that happens and all unexpectedly we found our corydallis growing along the road—in bloom. Our desire was gratified, and the nine mile hike was a joy never to be forgotten.

Yes, the magazine is right, and "there's a story in everybody," and the census taker will soon be getting it.

LUTHERAN BROTHERHOOD HAS REVIEW OF CONTEST

Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood held a rousing session Thursday evening, the meeting being a review of the past five meetings, making up the contest extraordinary.

The first number of the contest was given on Jan. 16 by the professional men of the Brotherhood, with Rev. G. J. Troutman, D. D., as director; the second on Feb. 6 by the musicians, with E. C. Ebert in charge; the third on Feb. 20 with R. L. Brehmer directing; the fourth on March 6, by the farmers, managed by Charles Walters, and the last number of the series on March 20, by the merchants, under J. D. Hummel.

Judging was based upon information, entertainment, uniqueness, presentation and effectiveness, judging having been done by C. O. Leist, L. T. Shaner, J. W. Johnson, Prof W. M. Reid and Hon. Walter Marion. The decision was awarded to the merchants, thus throwing the responsibility of serving lunch not only to the winning team, but to the entire Brotherhood, upon the four losing teams.

Bob Brehmer again demonstrated his ability as a chef and headed the lunch committee that served mock turtle soup made over his famous secret recipe.

The review under the direction of Rev. G. L. Troutman, was arranged in the form of a mock trial, charges of bribery having been preferred against the five judges.

The specific charge filed against Prof. W. M. Reid was that he was bribed into rendering his decision in favor of the merchants' team with a promise of the superintendency of the schools of Pickaway-co.

Hon. Walter J. Marion was specifically charged with having been bribed by being given a permanent permit to sell rotten vegetables; C. O. Leist with a continuation to weigh his heaviest hand in all drafts of sugar, etc., sold to the winning team, J. W. Johnson, with being bribed into leaving the community and going to the Sunny Southland, after having judged but one number of the series of entertainments, and L. T. Shaner given a permit to repeat his old jokes as often as any one would listen to him, if he would cast his vote in favor of the merchants.

C. M. Titus sat as presiding judge; Fulton Cryder served as court bailiff; John W. Walters as clerk of courts; George C. Griffith as court stenographer and Ralph Mack as sheriff.

E. C. Crist and C. G. Chalfin are the attorneys for the prosecution and C. A. Leist and J. R. Noecker for the defense.

The entire evening was taken up in the selection of the jury and as now constituted is made up of the following Arthur Barthelmas, John Beck, Frank Palm, H. A. Bumgarner, A. E. Fellers, Daniel Eitel, Sr., M. J. Valentine, Jack Wardell, George Fischer, Wm. Fitzpatrick, Chester C. Wolf, Mason Klingensmith and Clinton Mougey, Mr Mougey being the thirteenth or reserve juror.

The entire procedure was a travesty on the usual conduct of a trial and was a scream from start to finish.

The next regular meeting date falls in Holy Week, hence this meeting was dropped out entirely. The regular procedure of the trial will begin with the next meeting on Thursday evening, May 1.

TRUCK DRIVER DIES, 3 HURT

Machine Catapults Over Embankment Where Bridge Is Knocked Out.

MEDINA, O., April 4—Robert F. Morrow, 33, of Akron, was instantly killed early Thursday when he drove his large truck and an 8-ton trailer over an embankment of the Rocky River where another 10-ton truck had demolished the bridge a few seconds before. Three other men were injured in the dual accident.

Raymond Pryor, driver of the 10-ton truck, drove his large transport into one railing of the bridge. It careened into the other railing and the truck, and Pryor, and his companion Charles Altovear, were thrown into the river. The bridge collapsed under the force of the impact. Both of the men escaped with injuries.

Morrow's truck was following Pryor's closely. When the bridge fell into the stream, Morrow was unable to stop his vehicle. It plunged over the embankment where the bridge had been a few moments before. Carl Stanley, of Lakemore, Morrow's helper, was the third man injured.

Pryor's truck was the property of the Onid Fedigan and Alfred Company, Incorporated, of Pittsburg, and Morrow was driving for the Patton Motor and Trucking Company of Akron, Ohio.

COMMISSIONERS OFFER REWARD

IRONTON, O., April 4—Convinced that an airplane fell into the Ohio river near here as reported by Grasselli Chemical Company workers, Lawrence-co commissioners today offered $100 reward for indisputable evidence of the plane's presence on the river bottom.

Dragging for the plane was resumed in earnest today, without success.

County officials say that liquor and narcotics have been "run" from Cincinnati to Huntington, W. Va., via airplane recently and that the plane reported to have fallen into the river was probably one of the carriers.

Swiftest, Eastest Way to End Bilious Spell

When you neglect those first symptoms of constipation—bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness, the whole system soon suffers. Appetite lags. Digestion slows up. You become headachy, dizzy, bilious.

It's easy to correct sluggish bowel action! Take a candy Cascaret tonight. See how quickly—and pleasantly—the bowels are activated. All the souring waste is gently propelled from the system. Regular and complete bowel action is restored.

Cascarets are made from pure cascara, a substance which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have Cascarets. 10c.

Starving, With A Stomach Full Of Food

WHAT has been considered to be "rheumatism," joint stiffness or lameness in cattle, as well as a serious disease known as pica are found to be due to the lack of phosphoric acid, lime and other mineral elements in the ration of farm animals, according to a survey just completed by the American Agricultural Chemical Company.

In making public the results of this survey, which is based upon 119 experiments conducted during 1929 in 18 northern states and Canada, Horace Bowker, President of the Company, whose general offices are located at 420 Lexington Avenue, New York, said.

"A farm animal can starve with a stomach full of food. It cannot live on protein, fat, and carbohydrates alone; it must also have vitamins if vigor is to be maintained. And now we find it must also have a sufficient supply of the vital mineral elements, notably lime and phosphates, if healthy growth is to result."

Worn out pasture lands are partly to blame. Although such pastures may grow alfalfa and clover, this does not mean that the soil necessarily contains the proper minerals to make such crops sufficient for the cattle who feed on them. Mineral-starved cattle slowly but surely undergo a sort of general break-down. Joints stiffen, their bones break readily and they appear to be starving, although they are being fed regularly. They try to get the lacking mineral matter by licking stones, eating or licking dirt, or gnawing the manger, while refusing alfalfa and clover.

As an emergency measure, the feeding of artificial phosphates, bone meal and other concentrates acts as a cure but the survey points out that the only way really to control the situation is to properly fertilize the land which produces the feed with phosphoric acid, potash, lime, and other essential materials. Authorities agree that, long before mineral deficiency is evident from the appearance of live stock, the output of the animals affected is steadily lowered and farm income thereby reduced.

Laboratory tests of grass clippings from pastures before and after proper fertilization show an average increase of 197 percent of the necessary mineral content, this increase being brought about by the use of fertilizer containing balanced quantities of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash—and lime where soils are "sour." These tests also how that the average yield of protein in pasture grasses was increased 87 percent, or $28.75 per acre, figuring protein at 12½ cents a pound.

"LOVE LIKE OURS CAN NEVER DIE," MUTTERED MARMADUKE, THICKLY.

"You'd be surprised," replied the sprightly Sophia. "With a rasping voice like yours, love is likely to fly out of the window and land on the back of its neck. What our love needs is insurance."

"What insurance?" he wondered.

"The insurance of OLD GOLDS, boy friend. Throat-ease and tender tones caused by the mellow, mild, heart-leaf tobacco; vocal cords that act without a struggle; no tickle, scratch or scrape. OLD GOLD yourself, Marmie, and we shall be inseparable. There's not a bark in a billion."

ROTARY MEMBERS TELL OF VACATIONS IN SUNNY SOUTH

Rotarians, at their weekly meeting Thursday noon, heard Tom Gilliland and Frank Barnhill tell their impressions of Florida and the south, these two members having had the pleasure of enjoying Florida sunshine during the winter months. Gilliland, the first speaker told how well he enjoyed the motor trip to Florida and the good roads that were found from the time the trip was started. Getting into Florida, we missed the blue grass and the clover, he stated, and that was one thing that made me homesick. The people in Florida we found to be very hospitable and in Miami it seemed that the people there had the one attitude of wanting to get out of Florida as soon as they could living expenses are not exhorbitant and the sunshine, which attracts many people to the South, is plentiful. Most of the Florida cities are bankrupt, or nearly so, he stated, and this condition was brought about by the program of land development, followed by the crash of land values and the end of the boom. Tom spent most of his time at Miami. Frank Barnhill then told of his trip and having spent most of his time at Tampa had other parts of Florida to tell about. He, too was much impressed with the good roads and fine towns and enjoyed visits in several of the cities on the Western coast of Florida. "St. Petersburg," he stated, "is a wonderful city, but terribly overcrowded with tourists A city of 40,000 taking care of over 100,000 tourists is a big job, and that is what they had to do there this winter" Frank told of his visit to the sponge market, and how the large amount of sponges are disposed of Crystal Springs, one of natures beauty spots in Florida, was described. Tampa is a fine Florida city and the people are very hospitable and can make any ones visit quite a pleasure

At the meeting a one year attendance button was presented to George Foresman and a two year button to Frank Barnhill.

NEW VOTE OFFER

From Friday, April 4, to Thursday, April 10, 5:30 P. M. Sharp

For the next week we will have an offer which closely resembles the first regular bonus offer, in that extra votes are given for a certain amount in either old or new subscribers Here is where those old subscribers who have promised you for "later" should be seen and brought to time. You will have another NEW PROPOSITION which will prove of great interest to all for it gives every one a chance to help decide the winners on the final day. You have two different offers, so take advantage of both of them by next Thursday.

FOR NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS ONLY

A group of Eight New Subscribers for one year or more, by mail or carrier, will count 10,000 Extra Votes. A group of Fifteen New Subscribers, for one year or more, by mail or carrier, will count 20,000 Extra Votes, and the money collected will count on the Straight Bonus Offer given below. New subscribers for less than a year will not count on this offer.

For Subscriptions, NEW and OLD, between the above mentioned dates:

$ 25 in subscriptions will count 20,000 Extra Votes
$ 50 in subscriptions will count 25.000 Extra Votes
$ 75 in subscriptions will count 40,000 Extra Votes
$100 in subscriptions will count 65,000 Extra Votes
$125 in subscriptions will count 95,000 Extra Votes
$150 in subscriptions will count 135.000 Extra Votes
$200 in subscriptions will count 270,000 Extra Votes
Start out to secure the largest bonus of extra votes.

ALSO

The following votes will be given for subscriptions for less than a year

$10.00 in subscriptions will count 5.000 Extra Votes
$25 00 in subscriptions will count 15,000 Extra Votes
This offer is on New and Old Subscriptions.

CAMPAIGN

good "wait" coming to you, for your friends will show only as much interest as you yourself radiate, but if you take hold of the campaign with a determination of winning and then jump right in and fight every day, you will find that subscriptions will not be very hard to get There are several hundred people in and around Circleville who are just waiting for someone to come to them for a subscription, and it will be freely given. They will give their assistance to the first one who calls on them

Candidates, you should not feel discouraged because other candidates are credited with more votes than you have in the paper. Do not feel that you are hopelessly beaten You are not snowed under by any means; for while extra votes are given, you can make up any deficiency. Here is a fair question Do you know how many votes you can secure this week for $200 00 in subscriptions? The bonus vote alone is 270,000 and the regular votes would run your score up around the 1,000,000 mark. If you take hold of this proposition the same as you do your regular vocation you will be surprised to find out just how much you can accomplish in a week's time. You must determine that nothing will stop you from going out and getting the big bonus ballot. That is the only way to be successful in the campaign.

In today's issue Miss Louise Leonard takes the lead over the entire field by casting 13,100 votes and standing 455,900 in The Herald today. Miss Leonard is one mighty busy lady these days, but finds time to devote to the campaign for she knows right well that nothing under the sun but subscriptions will win either of the prizes to be given on the final day Miss Leonard has many friends who are helping her and who will stick to her until the finish.

An Angry Bull is Like The Dove of Peace Compared to a Jealous Woman

Because she feared losing her husband's love, she sat by and smiled while he plunged into one affair after another!

That was the code of the artists' colony in which they lived. And Eve subscribed to the warped belief that only in absolute freedom could martial happiness be secure.

But underneath her frozen smile burned the virtuous ardor of a long line of Puritan forefathers. A flame of indignation, violated pride—and jealousy!

A woman is safe until she's jealous.

But then watch out! For an angry bull is like the dove of peace compared to a jealous woman!

"Sheik's Wife," Winifred Van Duzer's powerful study of infidelity in love, far surpasses anything previous from her famous pen. With an array of successes such as 'The Plain Twin,' 'The Scarlet Lady,' 'Half Wives' and 'Her High Knight,' Miss Van Duzer has reached the peak of her career in "Sheik's Wife."

Watch for "Sheik's Wife" in The Herald beginning Tuesday, April 8. Here is the blazing story of a bride who loved an unfaithful husband and won him back only after the sharp tongue of scandal almost destroyed her. Don't miss this greatest of all Van Duzer serials!

Written for Amusement

It is said that the child's book, "The Adventures of Tommy," was written while its author, H. G. Wells, was convalescing in a friend's home. He had been given a box of paints, and to amuse himself wrote and illustrated this story of a "very proud rich man" and a "very nice boy named Tommy." He presented it to a little girl in the household, with the colored pictures.

Musical Show Has Southern Setting At Pickaway-twp

The musical comedy "In Old Louisiana" presented by the Pickaway highschool Thursday night, was under the direction of Miss Mary Radcliff, art and music supervisor. Mary Ruth Tolbert was the accompanist, and Lee A. Smith was the scenic artist.

The theme of the show was typically southern in style, manner and costuming. It was a southern romance with singing and dancing The young talent among the cast and choruses was admirably trained under Miss Radcliff, and the scenes were pretty and romantic

The plot revolved around Rose-Mary McKenzie, who took the part of Rose, whose beauty and charm was plucked and treasured by the noble Richard St John, who bravely fought a duel for her Carl Anderson was the gallant with the fiery blood.

Simon Scudder, a southern overseer, was portrayed remarkably well by Marshall. Spangler who carried the weight of his heavy part on capable shoulders.

Monty Gray in the story was played by Frederick Smith Marvine Harral as Martha St John gave a glimpse of a southern bell keeping a northern lover guessing Marvin Hampshire was in the role of Pilot Farley, a kindly old gentleman who amused his guests by singing his childhood songs, during moments of reminiscence.

A servant, Old Ned, was played by Ansel Estel, and his wife Judy, by Marvine French Their negro spirituals were among the high lights of the show

The students all gave a creditable performance, one that is well worth seeing, for an evening of music, and dances of the old southern days. Their show was the result of the untiring efforts of their teacher, Miss Mary Radcliff

The stage settings which gave the actors a splendid atmosphere, and back ground, was the work of Lee Smith. Mary Ruth Tolbert played the entire score for the show, and for all the practices

"In Old Louisiana" will be presented again this evening at eight o'clock at the school house
